

Research in beta_space

Beta_space is an active research environment where practice based research in interactive art is conducted in a public context. We have a team of researchers including curators, artists, interaction designers and cognitive scientists collecting, analysing and publishing data based on studies in the space. Please see our publications pages for some examples of research that has taken place in beta_space